Passage (Read Carefully)

Mia loved exploring new places. One Saturday morning, she decided to visit the old park near her house. The park had tall trees, winding paths, and a small pond in the middle. It was quiet and peaceful.

As Mia walked along the path, she noticed a small box lying under a tree. It looked old and dusty. Curious, she picked it up and opened it. Inside, she found a note and a tiny golden key. The note read, "The treasure is hidden where water meets stone."

Mia looked around and thought about the clue. She walked toward the pond and noticed some large rocks near the edge. She searched carefully between the rocks and found a small locked chest. With excitement, she used the golden key to open it.

Inside the chest, Mia found colorful marbles, a toy ring, and a note that said, "Sometimes, the greatest treasure is the adventure." Mia smiled, realizing that the fun she had searching was more important than the treasure itself.

She went home happily, ready to share her story with her family.
